

than funds whose investments are diversified. These funds may not be suitable for all investors. In recent years returns have sustained significant gains and losses due to market volatility in the technology, telecommunications and healthcare (which includes biotechnology) sectors. Due to recent market volatility, certain funds may have an increased position in cash for temporary defensive purposes. Foreign securities involve risks not typically associated with investing in U.S. securities. These risks include currency fluctuations, economic and political instability, and potential foreign taxation. In considering different funds, you should consider a fund's risk as well as its performance history and other factors. The Importance of Diversifying Your Retirement Savings: To help achieve long-term retirement security, you should give careful consideration to the benefits of a well-balanced and diversified investment portfolio. Spreading your assets among different types of investments can help you achieve a favorable rate of return, while minimizing your overall risk of losing money. This is because market or other economic conditions that cause one category of assets, or one particular security, to perform very well often cause another asset category, or another particular security, to perform poorly. If you invest more than 20% of your retirement savings in any one company or industry, your savings may not be properly diversified. Although diversification is not a guarantee against loss, it is an effective strategy to help you manage investment risk.

In deciding how to invest your retirement savings, you should take into account all of your assets, including any retirement savings outside of the Plan. No single approach is right for everyone because, among other factors, individuals have different financial goals, different time horizons for meeting their goals, and different tolerances for risk.

It is also important to periodically review your investment portfolio, your investment objectives, and the investment options under the Plan to help ensure that your retirement savings will meet your retirement goals.

For More Information: If you have any questions about your rights under this Plan, including your rights to direct investments, you may either refer to the Summary Plan Description or you may contact your Plan Administrator. If you want to obtain more information about personal investing and diversification, you may obtain this information from the U.S. Department of Labor, Employee Benefits Security Administration website at <http://www.dol.gov/ebsa/investing.html>.

Important Information: "Fund Performance" for the PNC Investment Contract Fund represents returns of the Fund and does not reflect any applicable account level fees. The ending balance reported under "Your Account Activity by Investment Fund" takes into account applicable fees for this fund. Shares of the mutual funds and participation interests in the collective investment funds are not insured by the FDIC or any other U.S. Government agency, and are not deposits or obligations of, or guaranteed or endorsed by, PNC or any bank. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. Investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Fund performance shown assumes reinvestment of dividends and capital gains distribution. The performance information for some of the funds listed above may reflect fee waivers. If such fee waivers, which may be voluntary, had not been in place, the performance of any fund waiving fees would have been lower. An alternate share class is shown if the approved class has not achieved historical performance. Although money market funds attempt to maintain a constant net asset value per share, there is no guarantee that they will be able to do so. Different funds are subject to different degrees and types of risk. Small company stocks and micro-cap stocks may exhibit a higher degree of price volatility than stocks of larger companies with longer earnings histories. Additional risk associated with micro-cap stocks may include reliance on limited product lines, difficulty in obtaining information about the companies, and reduced liquidity. Funds whose investments are concentrated in a specific industry, sector or geographic area may be subject to a higher degree of market risk than funds whose investments are diversified. These funds may not be suitable for all investors. In recent years returns have sustained significant gains and losses due to market volatility in the technology, telecommunications and healthcare (which includes biotechnology) sectors. Due to recent market volatility, certain funds may have an increased position in cash for temporary defensive purposes. Foreign securities involve risks not typically associated with investing in U.S. securities. These risks include currency fluctuations, economic and political instability, and potential foreign taxation. In considering different funds, you should consider a fund's risk as well as its performance history and other factors. For information regarding any of the mutual funds, including charges and expenses, call the Vested Interest Response Line at 1-800-374-4931 to obtain a prospectus and please read carefully before investing. PNC Institutional Investments is a service mark of The PNC Financial Services Group, Inc., which is used by a number of affiliated banks in the provision of investment management, fiduciary and banking services.

HOW ARE CAPITAL GAINS REFLECTED IN MY ACCOUNT?

Typically, mutual funds distribute capital gains to their shareholders. Generally, capital gains distributions are paid to shareholders on an annual basis. When a capital gain is distributed a fund's share price is reduced by the amount of distribution on the ex-dividend date. This is not a market loss, but an accounting convention. Although the price is reduced by the amount of the distribution, investors who are reinvesting their distributions receive a corresponding increase in the number of shares they own on the payable date. On an aggregate basis, investors have the same amount invested, even though their fund's share price has dropped. The following example illustrates the process:

Distribution: Fund declares long-term capital gains distribution of $1.00 per share, or $1,000 for the participant.

After Distribution: Fund price falls from $10.00 to $9.00. Participant receives addition shares representing the reinvested capital gain ($1.00 per share times 1,000 shares, reinvested at $9.00 (per share). Total holdings after the distribution: 1,111.111 shares at $9.00, or $10,000. (Note: Market conditions for the fund will also impact the price change for the day.)

Please keep in mind that PNC does not receive all of the information required to post your capital gain to your account on the same day as the reduction in the fund price. Therefore, you will see a brief lag between the drop in price and the posting of your capital gain.

Important Information: "Fund Performance" for the PNC Investment Contract Fund represents returns of the Fund and does not reflect any applicable account level fees. The ending balance reported under "Your Account Activity by Investment Fund" takes into account applicable fees for this fund. Shares of the mutual funds and participation interests in the collective investment funds are not insured by the FDIC or any other U.S. Government agency, and are not deposits or obligations of, or guaranteed or endorsed by, PNC or any bank. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. Investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Fund performance shown assumes reinvestment of dividends and capital gains distribution. The performance information for some of the funds listed above may reflect fee waivers. If such fee waivers, which may be voluntary, had not been in place, the performance of any fund waiving fees would have been lower. An alternate share class is shown if the approved class has not achieved historical performance. Although money market funds attempt to maintain a constant net asset value per share, there is no guarantee that they will be able to do so. Different funds are subject to different degrees and types of risk. Small company stocks and micro-cap stocks may exhibit a higher degree of price volatility than stocks of larger companies with longer earnings histories. Additional risk associated with micro-cap stocks may include reliance on limited product lines, difficulty in obtaining information about the companies, and reduced liquidity. Funds whose investments are concentrated in a specific industry, sector or geographic area may be subject to a higher degree of market risk than funds whose investments are diversified. These funds may not be suitable for all investors. In recent years returns have sustained significant gains and losses due to market volatility in the technology, telecommunications and healthcare (which includes biotechnology) sectors. Due to recent market volatility, certain funds may have an increased position in cash for temporary defensive purposes. Foreign securities involve risks not typically associated with investing in U.S. securities. These risks include currency fluctuations, economic and political instability, and potential foreign taxation. In considering different funds, you should consider a fund's risk as well as its performance history and other factors. The PNC Profile Funds are collective investment funds of PNC that invest entirely in portfolios of the BlackRock Funds. Affiliates of PNC receive fees from BlackRock Funds and certain other funds for services such as: investment advisory, transfer agency, custody, administration and other services. For information regarding any of the mutual funds, including charges and expenses, call the Vested Interest Response Line at 1-800-374-4631 to obtain a prospectus and please read carefully before investing. PNC Advisors is a service mark of The PNC Financial Services Group, Inc., which is used by a number of affiliated banks in the provision of investment management, fiduciary and banking services.

Important Information: "Fund Performance" for the PNC Investment Contract Fund represents returns of the Fund and does not reflect any applicable account level fees. The ending balance reported under "Your Account Activity by Investment Fund" takes into account applicable fees for this fund. Shares of the mutual funds and participation interests in the collective investment funds are not insured by the FDIC or any other U.S. Government agency, and are not deposits or obligations of, or guaranteed or endorsed by, PNC or any bank. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. Investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Fund performance shown assumes reinvestment of dividends and capital gains distribution. The performance information for some of the funds listed above may reflect fee waivers. If such fee waivers, which may be voluntary, had not been in place, the performance of any fund waiving fees would have been lower. An alternate share class is shown if the approved class has not achieved historical performance. Although money market funds attempt to maintain a constant net asset value per share, there is no guarantee that they will be able to do so. Different funds are subject to different degrees and types of risk. Small company stocks and micro-cap stocks may exhibit a higher degree of price volatility than stocks of larger companies with longer earnings histories. Additional risk associated with micro-cap stocks may include reliance on limited product lines, difficulty in obtaining information about the companies, and reduced liquidity. Funds whose investments are concentrated in a specific industry, sector or geographic area may be subject to a higher degree of market risk than funds whose investments are diversified. These funds may not be suitable for all investors. In recent years returns have sustained significant gains and losses due to market volatility in the technology, telecommunications and healthcare (which includes biotechnology) sectors. Due to recent market volatility, certain funds may have an increased position in cash for temporary defensive purposes. Foreign securities involve risks not typically associated with investing in U.S. securities. These risks include currency fluctuations, economic and political instability, and potential foreign taxation. In considering different funds, you should consider a fund's risk as well as its performance history and other factors. The PNC Profile Funds are collective investment funds of PNC that invest entirely in portfolios of the BlackRock Funds. Affiliates of PNC receive fees from BlackRock Funds and certain other funds for services such as: investment advisory, transfer agency, custody, administration and other services. For information regarding any of the mutual funds, including charges and expenses, call the Vested Interest Response Line at 1-800-374-4631 to obtain a prospectus and please read carefully before investing. PNC Advisors is a service mark of The PNC Financial Services Group, Inc., which is used by a number of affiliated banks in the provision of investment management, fiduciary and banking services.

Getting Personal About Saving

Have you taken the time to consider your Personal Savings Rate? In recent months you have probably read on the Internet or in the paper about how Americans are not saving enough. Your Personal Savings Rate (PSR) is the amount of money that you have left over as a percentage of your total income once you have paid for your mortgage, taxes, auto loan, tuition payments, bought groceries, movie tickets, and anything else that you might buy with your paycheck.

In order to calculate your Personal Savings Rate, simply look at the amount of money that you are spending every month, and also the amount of money that you are saving. If you are spending more than you make, your PSR is most likely going to be negative. For example, if you make $2,000 per month, but you are spending $2,200, then your PSR is a negative 10% (-$200 divided by $2,000 equals -10%). However, if you are making $2,000 per month, but only spending $1,900 then your PSR is a positive 5 percent (+$100 divided by $2,000 equals 5%).

One way in which you can increase your Personal Savings Rate is by increasing your contributions to your employer-sponsored savings plan. You will not only be able to increase your PSR by increasing your contributions, but you will also be able to take advantage of the benefits of pre-tax savings. Since contributions to your employer-sponsored savings plan are made on a gross salary basis - for every 1% that you increase your contributions, you will also be increasing your Personal Savings Rate by 1%!

Important Information: "Fund Performance" for the PNC Investment Contract Fund represents returns of the Fund and does not reflect any applicable account level fees. The ending balance reported under "Your Account Activity by Investment Fund" takes into account applicable fees for this fund. Shares of the mutual funds and participation interests in the collective investment funds are not insured by the FDIC or any other U.S. Government agency, and are not deposits or obligations of, or guaranteed or endorsed by, PNC or any bank. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. Investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Fund performance shown assumes reinvestment of dividends and capital gains distribution. The performance information for some of the funds listed above may reflect fee waivers. If such fee waivers, which may be voluntary, had not been in place, the performance of any fund waiving fees would have been lower. An alternate share class is shown if the approved class has not achieved historical performance. Although money market funds attempt to maintain a constant net asset value per share, there is no guarantee that they will be able to do so. Different funds are subject to different degrees and types of risk. Small company stocks and micro-cap stocks may exhibit a higher degree of price volatility than stocks of larger companies with longer earnings histories. Additional risk associated with micro-cap stocks may include reliance on limited product lines, difficulty in obtaining information about the companies, and reduced liquidity. Funds whose investments are concentrated in a specific industry, sector or geographic area may be subject to a higher degree of market risk than funds whose investments are diversified. These funds may not be suitable for all investors. In recent years returns have sustained significant gains and losses due to market volatility in the technology, telecommunications and healthcare (which includes biotechnology) sectors. Due to recent market volatility, certain funds may have an increased position in cash for temporary defensive purposes. Foreign securities involve risks not typically associated with investing in U.S. securities. These risks include currency fluctuations, economic and political instability, and potential foreign taxation. In considering different funds, you should consider a fund's risk as well as its performance history and other factors. The PNC Profile Funds are collective investment funds of PNC that invest entirely in portfolios of the BlackRock Funds. Affiliates of PNC receive fees from BlackRock Funds and certain other funds for services such as: investment advisory, transfer agency, custody, administration and other services. For information regarding any of the mutual funds, including charges and expenses, call the Vestad Interest Response Line at 1-800-374-4631 to obtain a prospectus and please read carefully before investing. PNC Advisors is a service mark of The PNC Financial Services Group, Inc., which is used by a number of affiliated banks in the provision of investment management, fiduciary and banking services.

Retirement isn't what it used to be.

Think about it: Your parents and grandparents most likely worked until the age of 65, then experienced a retirement of 5, 10 or maybe 15 years. In the past, retirement was more about entering the final stage of life than about planning for its next chapter. Thanks to medical advances, better nutrition and increased awareness of health-related issues, people are living longer than ever. That means retirement is lasting longer than ever - but it is also more expensive. Costs don't decline across the board when you retire. They change. Clothing and commuting costs may go down, but your medical costs will probably rise. And don't forget about inflation, which can significantly influence a retiree's cash flow through the years.

Be realistic about your plans for retirement. Are you financially on track? In February 2006, the average benefit retired workers received from Social Security was just $918 per month.* Generally, the more you earn during your working years, the less Social Security will replace, in percentage terms. The bottom line is that it's up to you to accumulate enough money to help ensure an adequate retirement income.

Have you ever taken the time to consider what your retirement might look like? How much income you will need? By most estimates, you'll need between 70% and 85% of your final working year's income to maintain your current lifestyle after retiring. What does this mean? Lets say your yearly income at retirement is $30,000. To live in retirement and maintain the same lifestyle prior to retiring, you will need approximately $24,000 per year ($30,000 X 80%). This means if you live in retirement for 25 years you will need to save around $600,000.

These funds may not be suitable for all investors. In recent years returns have sustained significant gains and losses due to market volatility in the technology, telecommunications and healthcare (which includes biotechnology) sectors. Due to recent market volatility, certain funds may have an increased position in cash for temporary defensive purposes. Foreign securities involve risks not typically associated with investing in U.S. securities. These risks include currency fluctuations, economic and political instability, and potential foreign taxation. In considering different funds, you should consider a fund's risk as well as its performance history and other factors. The PNC Profile Funds are collective investment funds of PNC that invest entirely in portfolios of the BlackRock Funds. Affiliates of PNC receive fees from BlackRock Funds and certain other funds for services such as: investment advisory, transfer agency, custody, administration and other services. For information regarding any of the mutual funds, including charges and expenses, call the Vested Interest Response Line at 1-800-374-4631 to obtain a prospectus and please read carefully before investing. PNC Advisors is a service mark of The PNC Financial Services Group, Inc., which is used by a number of affiliated banks in the provision of investment management, fiduciary and banking services.
